Congratulations on completing this course. You have been doing an incredible job, well done. Let's now review the key concepts we've covered in this module. Servant leadership is a mindset and philosophy of extraordinary leaders. There are ten key attributes of a servant leader; listening, empathy, healing, awareness, persuasion, conceptualization, foresight, stewardship, mentorship, and team building. Facilitation is an art of unlocking the intelligence, insights, and creativity of people. Individuals in teams possess a breadth of knowledge and amazing potential for creativity. Facilitation is also a skill of a servant leader who enables a team's full potential. By applying best practices and tools for online and live facilitation, you'll be able to foster courage, respect, openness, commitment, and focus within your teams. In the next course, we'll do a deep dive into change management theories. Everything you have learned in this specialization so far should prepare you to apply each theory successfully within your organization. I'll see you there.
